

Supreme Court Caseload

The caseload information shown in Table 1 on page 5 is also presented graphically in Chart 1. The categories shown are those most commonly used in Supreme Court cases.

“Intermediate Appeals” are appeals made during the progress of a case in circuit court. Intermediate appeals are accepted at the discretion of the Supreme Court.

“Notice of Review” is filed by an appellee (party against whom an appeal is taken) seeking review of a judgment or order entered in the same action from which an appeal has been taken. A notice of review is a separate filing but not a separate disposition since it is disposed as part of the original appeal.

“Certificates of Probable Cause” are required before an appeal can be brought in a habeas corpus case.

“Summary Dispositions” are appeals that have been summarily affirmed or reversed on established grounds set forth in SDCL 15-26A-87.1. In these proceedings the Court, on its own motion, may affirm or reverse the judgment or order from which the appeal is taken. The Court must be unanimous in its decision to render a summary disposition, and the decision is set out in an order or memorandum opinion. The term “expedited appeal” is sometimes used because it usually takes less time to process appeals under this rule.

“Pending Cases” are cases which have been filed with the Court but in which no decision has been entered. Pending cases are divided into:

- “Submitted and pending” -- cases which have been completely briefed, orally argued, or submitted to the Court on briefs and await only final disposition by the Court
- “Ready for submission” -- cases which have been completely briefed and are awaiting placement on the Court calendar
- “Not ready for calendar” -- cases which have been filed but are still in the transcript or briefing stages.
